Description

Classic wood – but gliding along silently. This Wiking Variant combines traditional boatbuilding with modern electric technology.
Built in 1984, comprehensively restored and consistently electrified in 2020: a 11 kW Einmeier inboard motor replaces the classic petrol engine, powered by a LiFeMnPO4 lithium battery system with EMUS BMS. Since then only around 100 engine hours. You take over a boat that has remained a classic in appearance – but technically runs on the current state of the art.
The Wiking Variant was built in limited numbers only. Accordingly, well-preserved examples are rare on the market – and even rarer are those that have been modernised so consistently. Not patchwork, but a cleanly executed refit with a clear concept: preserve the substance, renew the technology.
With a draught of just 30 cm you can reach areas that remain closed to other boats. The electric drive transforms the entire driving experience: almost silent, low vibration, no fuel smell, no classic maintenance effort. Simply step aboard and go.
The equipment is fully ready for immediate use: bathing platform with ladder, harbour cover, fenders, lines and life jackets are all on board. The trailer is included in the price. Test drive on Lake Chiemsee possible.
In short: a rare wooden classic, fully electrified and ready to use immediately – quiet, low-maintenance and with a clear history.
